I am very honored by other invitations I have received but had to turn down because of other commitments. They include the memorial lecture in Heidelberg on the occasion of Viktor Pöschl's 100th birthday (Jan. 28, 2010); a conference on Ovid and myth in Murcia (Nov. 2010); lectures at the Universities of Tel Aviv and London (2011); the memorial lecture for Antonie Wlosok at the Univ. of Mainz (2014); conferences on Augustus in Italy, Germany, and Spain (2014); Keynote, Biennial Conference of Sociedade Brasileira de Estudos Clássicos, Sao Paulo, December 2017.

For the various programs I have organized in connection with the Max–Planck Award project on Roman memory, see <http://www.laits.utexas.edu/memoria/>. The project (2009-2014) has supported 14 international dissertation fellowships and, with smaller research grants, 17 postdocs. It also has sponsored several international conferences; the final one taking place at the Getty Villa Museum in Malibu in April 2013.
