

History Honors Program 2024 – 2025

Dear Prospective History Honors Program Student:

This letter is to invite you to consider the History Honors Program as a part of your educational experience at The University of Texas at Austin. The History Honors Program, one of the most respected and distinguished scholarly programs on campus, is open to all junior history majors who will continue in the program through graduation at the end of their senior years. It offers three-semester of intensive training in archival research and writing (from Spring 2024 to Spring 2025). Your work be directed by leading members of UT's history faculty who specialize in your chosen research subject. This three-semester course of study will lead ultimately to the production of a 50–100-page honors thesis and graduation with honors. Graduates of the History Honors Program have attended top graduate schools in America and the world but are just as likely to find rewarding careers where great research skills are valued, including, for example, law, politics, industry, medicine, and Fortune 500 companies. Students who meet the program requirements and are looking for an extraordinary educational opportunity are invited to apply.

Information Session on the History Honors Program: Thursday, September 21st at 5:00 in GAR 1.102

History Honors Application Deadline: Monday, October 16. The application is available at:

If you would like to acquaint yourself with the program, please view the History Honors web site: <https://liberalarts.utexas.edu/history/undergraduate-program/honors.html>

For further information, please contact the Director of the History Honors Program, Dr. Neil Kamil at kamil@austin.utexas.edu, or you can visit the History Department's Undergraduate Advising Office, Garrison Hall, Room 1.140, 471-7670.

Sincerely,

Neil Kamil
Director
History Honors